ELECTRONIC SIGNATURE AGREEMENT

Please take a moment to read and acknowledge your understanding and acceptance of the Federal Electronic Signatures In Global and National Commerce Act (E-Sign)

Under the Federal Electronic Signatures in Global and National Commerce Act, before we may accept your account agreement and related documents electronically, we must provide you with the following information and you must affirmatively agree and not withdraw such agreement.

By electronically signing our account agreement and related documents, you acknowledge receipt of the Commodity Futures Trading Commission's required risk disclosures and other documents contained as part of our electronic account package and you agree to be bound by their terms and conditions. In addition, by signing our account agreement and related documents, you are consenting to our maintaining and your receiving electronic records of your trades and accounts. You may withdraw your consent to such electronic records by notifying us in writing or by e-mail, at any time, after which you only will receive paper records. However, please be advised that should you withdraw your consent to receive records electronically and receive paper records of your transactions, you will be charged a fee.

There are no special hardware or software requirements for access to or retention of your electronic records at this time other than having access to the internet, and registering for your unique and secure user name and password (to print copies of the records, you may need a program to read documents in "PDF" format). Should any technological change or upgrade be made that will affect your ability to access your records and accounts, we will notify you and remind you of (A) your right to withdraw your consent to receive electronic records and to receive paper records instead, and (B) any fee we may charge you to receive paper records.

CFTC 1.55 RISK DISCLOSURE STATEMENT

The risk of loss in trading commodity futures contracts can be substantial. You should, therefore, carefully consider whether such trading is suitable for you in light of your circumstances and financial resources. You should be aware of the following points:

(1) You may sustain a total loss of the funds that you deposit with your broker to establish or maintain a position in the commodity futures market, and you may incur losses beyond these amounts. If the market moves against your position, you may be called upon by your broker to deposit a substantial amount of additional margin funds, on short notice, in order to maintain your position. If you do not provide the required funds within the time required by your broker, your position may be liquidated at a loss, and you will be liable for any resulting deficit in your account.

(2) Under certain market conditions, you may find it difficult or impossible to liquidate a position. This can occur, for example, when the market reaches a daily price fluctuation limit ("limit move").

(3) Placing contingent orders, such as "stop-loss" or "stop-limit" orders, will not necessarily limit your losses to the intended amounts, since market conditions on the exchange may make it impossible to execute such orders.
